Editor's Column

When a family plans to acquire a new home, or remodel to meet its needs, each member wants some part of the premises developed in line with his or her particular desires.

Unless there is someone intelligently guiding this planning, wrangling and confusion result. Such unfortunate conditions lead to bitterness. Some members of the family abandon the new venture and decide to "make do" with the out-dated inadequate house. Other members seek ways and means to "get away" as soon as possible. A once happy home is thus disrupted.

But if the planning of new, or improved, family quarters is intelligently guided each family member learns to accommodate his or her wants with those of the others. Everyone looks forward, to a satisfying degree, to occupying the new quarters which, they realize, will fulfill their needs and desires.

The final decision on the development, of course, rests with the head of the family, the controller of the family finances, whose dominating motivation is to achieve harmony—realistically.

Since April of 1964, Carmel seems to have been comparable to the family without guidance, at least until the city council appointed the Sunset Commission. Since then, this group of intelligent persons has been seeking to discover the needs and desires of the city's cultural organizations, also the citizens, in order to shape the plan for a municipal cultural and community center.

So far, only one plan has been presented to the Sunset Commission. This is, in many ways grandiose in scale and has met with opposition from the citizenry expressed in a signed petition presented to the city council.

Some of the cultural organizations are not completely happy with the only plan presented, so far. There is confusion and wrangling.

Therefore, it appears to be the time for all interested citizens and organizations to outline their needs and desires for Sunset development. These plans should be presented to the Sunset Commission.

If this is done, patiently, and in somewhat concrete form, bitterness that is developing in the city family can be forestalled.

The Sunset Commission is open-

Collectors of antiques pay cash
For odds and ends thrown out as trash;
Though Queen Anne's chair and Mozart's hat
Are quite a diff'rent breed of cat.

Right now old bottles, bowls and jars
Have superseded ancient cars.
The jug that once held grandpa's
snort
Is priceless now such things are sought.

That chamber pot that grandma hid
Beneath the bed, is up for bid;
And uncle's moustache cup I'm told
Is worth three times its weight in gold.

So don't discard your pots and pans,
Those mason jars or old tin cans.
Maybe the junk out in the barn
Is worth more than the whole damn farm!

To A House On Thirteenth Street, In 1909, Came The First American Writer To Win A Nobel Prize

Almost 60 years ago, a tall, awkward young man with unruly red hair and many freckles arrived in Carmel to be the secretary of two writers, Grace McGowan Cooke and her sister, Alice McGowan, who lived in the house pictured above.

During his stay here the youthful Yale graduate did not turn out to be very well suited to the job he had taken. He was much more interested in his own writing, urged on by the sale of a story to the Red Book Magazine for $75 which was almost simultaneous with the arrival of a telegram from Grace McGowan Cooke, inviting him to come to Carmel.

He accepted her invitation because the work she offered would allow him time to pursue his muse. He filled a cardboard box with fruit and bread and took the train West. For five days, he lived on this food, supplemented with coffee bought in railroad stations, on his trip to San Francisco, sitting up all the time, then to Monterey.

On January 5, 1909, the young man, who was to become the first American to win the Nobel Prize for Literature, hiked over the hill from Monterey and arrived at the Cooke house near the corner of Thirteenth and Carmelo streets in time for lunch. Sinclair Lewis had arrived in Carmel.

At that time, the two-story house with the sturdy foundations and chimney built of pebbles, and a large sheltered porch, stood alone. There was nothing between it and the ocean. Now other houses surround the house owned by Dr. Pao-Chen Lee, chairman of the Mandarin Chinese department at the Defense Language Institute, and his wife, Gwen, and few Carmelites remember the gangly youth who arrived here from the East in 1909.

Almost at once he was invited to picnic with the group of artists and writers who had moved to Carmel following the San Francisco earthquake. These gatherings were held, mostly, on the beach at the foot of Thirteenth Street below the Cooke house, and to this day, this part of the beach is known as Cooke's Cove.

Sinclair Lewis feasted with them on abalone, gathered off the rocks and pounded for frying to the accompaniment of the singing of original verses to become famous as "The Abalone Song."

Medill Bair Lauds AFA Contributions To Life In Carmel

"This area is fortunate to have the American Federation of Arts," Superintendent Medill Bair stressed at the meeting of the Carmel Unified School District board of education meeting last night. As a result of his enumerating the educational advantages accruing to the children of this community from the local AFA activities, the board agreed to cooperate with the AFA chapter and allow it to use school facilities whenever possible.

Mr. Bair also pointed out that the AFA is as important a part of life in Carmel as the police and fire departments, although its program is entirely cultural. He added that Carmel firemen were the first to arrive with equipment to fight the recent River School fire, to point up this department's effectiveness.

The cooperation was agreed upon after consideration of a letter from Leonard Heller, AFA president, inviting the school district to send both regular and adult education classes to exhibitions in the organization's Carmel gallery. These include shows from private collections as well as loan exhibitions from museums and universities.

"One of our main objectives is our educational program of which these exhibitions are a major part," Mr. Heller's letter said. This community service will be free to students in the district and the gallery's staff is available for briefings on the exhibitions, if desired, as it has in the past, the letter emphasized.

CUSD Board Accepts $140,680 Bid For New Construction

The low bid from Hallet Construction Company to construct a complex housing the Carmel Unified School District's central administrative offices and an instructional materials center was accepted by trustees last night.

The bid totaled $140,680 and was ten per cent lower than the estimate presented recently by the architects for the development, Keeble and Rhoda. Four bids for the construction on the Middle School campus were received.

Other action by trustees last night was to approve the employment of Robert E. Knych as Middle School physical education teacher at a yearly salary of $7,212; also Carl Cardoza as a part-time teacher of Spanish at Carmel High School, salary $1,633.

They agreed to sell a 1956 Chevrolet sedan because repair costs exceeded its value; also to allow the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula to continue to hold services at River School for another six months.

The greater part of the meeting was taken up with discussion on a set of rules governing regulations for administration of employer-employee relations of certificated personnel and the board of education.

This policy on governing board-superintendent-certificated personnel relations is an implementation of the Winton Act approved by the California Legislature.

The new law appeared in no way to materially change past policies in the Carmel district.

Writ Of Mandate Next Legal Action In Refinery Battle

Next legal skirmish in the citizens' battle with the Monterey County Board of Supervisors over the special permit granted for a Humble Oil and Refining Company refinery at Moss Landing is expected by the end of next week. City Attorney William B. Burleigh is preparing to file a petition for a writ of mandate compelling the supervisors to accept a petition, signed by over 12,500 registered voters, and requesting a special election on the refinery permit, or reconsideration of the refinery matter.

So far, acting on the advice of County Counsel William Stoffers, three of the supervisors have voted against action which would allow the election.

Funds to cover basic legal expenses of the fight have been received but Howard Church, Naval Postgraduate School professor who is heading the drive to obtain sufficient money to continue the fight all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, has set $60,000 as the amount needed to continue the battle on a national basis. This sum will be divided equally between legal and publicity expenses.

All donations may be sent to the Six Cities Fund, Box 1915, Carmel. Volunteers are also needed to carry on the fight at the county and national levels. Persons wishing to give their time may telephone 624-8572.

Carmel sent an impressive delegation to the League of California Cities convention which opened Monday in San Francisco.

Mayor Herbert Blanks headed the list of city officials and was accompanied by Mrs. Blanks. Others attending the convention were Councilman Eben Whittlesey and Mrs. Whittlesey; Councilman James C. Buffington and Mrs. Buffington; Councilman Gunnar Norberg and his wife, Barbara, chairman of the arts commission; City Administrator Hugh Bayless and Mrs. Bayless; Police Chief Clyde Klaumann and Mrs. Klaumann; Fire Chief John Baker; Superintendent of Streets and Public Works William L. Askew Jr. and Mrs. Askew; Planning Director Floyd Adams and Mrs. Adams; and City Attorney William B. Burleigh and Mrs. Burleigh.

Almost everyone expected to arrive home yesterday. In the meantime Councilman Stephen Grant was alert and ready to handle any emergency which might arise during the city's nearly officialless days and City Auditor Art Plaxton was guarding city hall with the help of Bonnie Fischer, Carla Poff and Dorothy Ford.

According to Carmel police, there are no new developments in the case of four burglaries of commercial establishments which occurred Sunday night. Everyone knows what a busman does on a holiday and now I know how Carmel's police chief occupied himself on, at least, one evening off. After the fire department's water fight last week, Mrs. Klauman wanted to tour the business district, window shopping. The chief played "tourist," too, and had an incognito unofficial look at one part of Carmel that he knows better than almost any other person in town. He seemed to be enjoying his off-beat walk, too.

SCOTLAND

Oh, Scotland is bonnie and Scotland's fair
There's a smell of heather and Peat smoke in the air.
They're tossing the caber
And dancing the fling
The skirl of the pipes would make your heart sing.
From the banks of the Dee to the shores of Loch Lomond
To Argyllshire south, it's a land no mon
Would'na feel a strong love for
Dundee and Ben Nevis and the Castle at Edinborough.
Hoot Mon!
Looks like our friends at the Forest Theater.

FRANCE

Turrets and towers and rough, narrow streets
Flat rolling fields of hay, corn and sugar beets.
Roads lined with poplars, bordered by streams
From Boulogne to Annecy, Calais to Rheims
Soups and croissants and wine with the meats
The streets are deserted while the Frenchman eats.
Shutters are closed and motor bikes stilled
While fresh loaves are eaten and inner man filled.
Now 'neath Mt. Blanc by the "lac" I'm taking my ease
Soon, over to Italy, by the South pass of Cenis.
It's rainy and cold now, so we hope for sun
At San Remo and Nice when this run is done.

Teen-age lasses seem to be in revolt against the shorts, jeans and stretch pants era, at least judging by those I've seen in my jaunts through the trees. Nowadays, they are wearing long dresses with a distinct Jane Austen influence. I wonder if they'll take up the bonnets of that time, too?

Jane might be a little surprised to see what has happened to the world since her time but I'm sure she'd find that young ladies still have the same interests, basically young men and parties—if her spirit should visit our village and she could hear above the loud din of present day popular music.

Maybe, though, she'd just happen to cut in on some of those long telephone calls and have enough material, in no time, for another novel.

According to my lookout on Reamer's Point, beachcombers who have been scanning the sea from the cove below can relax. The dead seal is floating in, along with the hatch cover from some unfortunate boat. Considering all the people who want that hatch cover, there should be quite a "rumble" on the beach any day now.

'Bonanza' Star Has Entry In Weekend Laguna Seca Races

Fans of "Bonanza" will have an opportunity to see one of the stars of the television show, Dan Blocker, who plays the part of "Hoss Cartwright," at the Monterey Grand Prix races at Laguna Seca track this weekend.

He has entered his new Genie Mark 10 sports racing car in the event to compete for some of the $40,000 prize money. However, "Hoss" won't be burning up the track on wheels. He will work in the pits while his driver, John Cannon, pilots the car in the races. Cannon has raced at Laguna Seca several times in the past.

Other entries for the Friday, Saturday and Sunday event, which is expected to draw 45,000 spectators, include Jim Hall, Hap Sharp, Dan Gurney, Parnelli Jones, Ken Miles, Skip Scott and Walt Hasgen. Don Wester and Ed Leslie of the Monterey Peninsula will also be in the competition.

The Laguna Seca championship races will start on Friday with all-day practice and qualifying for pro entries. Saturday, San Francisco SCCA Regional events will be run. On Sunday, there will be four big races, the last two being the heats of the Grand Prix.

The main entrance to the track is on the Salinas Highway. A second entrance is on Del Rey Canyon Road off Highway One in Seaside. There is a third entrance on East Garrison Road off Highway One in Marina. Free parking will be available in the infield for 30,000 cars. Local service clubs and youth organizations will serve refreshments.

SCOUT APPOINTMENTS

President Jack A. Hayes of the Monterey Bay Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, has appointed the following local men to various positions: Richard Bennett, chairman Order of the Arrow committee; August Johnson, chairman of the public relations committee; Thomson J. Hudson, member of the long range planning committee; Elwood J. Wilson, Section 3 chairman for Region Twelve.

Wee Willie Winkie sauntered down San Carlos Street last Thursday evening and, perched atop a metal barrel, defied members of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department at the Ocean Avenue intersection. Minutes later, Willie, who bore a strong resemblance to Battalion Chief James Kelsey, was doused with water from hoses held by competing teams of firemen. Apart from "cooling" Willie, their objective was to "capture" the inflated sphere seen above their heads in the picture.

By the time the battle ended, Willie, firemen, the street and quite a few of the several hundred spectators were drenched. Squeals from children dodging streams of water put the Beatles' audiences to shame. In the midst of the annual water fight celebrating Fire Prevention Week, Carmel's new fire chief, John R. Baker, wisely arrived, by a circuitous route, at the fire house. A little bird, or maybe a squirrel, whispered to him that the volunteers were delaying the fight in order to "christen" the new head of the department. Regan, Fire Commissioner Eben Whittlesey's Guide Dog, accompanied him to the watery spectacle and took in the parade which preceded it with her usual aplomb.

Mexico Will Be Home

Ed and Barbara Cave loaded everything they could cram into their Land Rover (the one with the abstract metal sculpture on its radiator) last week and set forth for Guanajuato, Mexico, to embark on an interesting task. They are negotiating to purchase and restore an old colonial mansion in that beautiful city where they will make their home.

Sandwiched in with the luggage were Barbara's daughter and son, Susie and Bobby, who will attend school in Guanajuato. Susie has been a Carmel High student. Bobby, who was at Middle School, holds the record in weekly sales of the Pine Cone, having cornered the market with a neat 50 steady customers.

On Saturday evening, the Campbells entertained at a small dinner party to introduce Jean and her family to some of their friends.

Jean and Philip, a first lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps, were married in All Hallow's Catholic Church at La Jolla on July 24, following notification that he was being assigned to Viet Nam. Their wedding originally was to have taken place at Saint Mary's Church in San Francisco last Saturday.

The new Mrs. Torrey is making her home in Long Beach until her husband returns from overseas.

Together Sixty Years

A "sentimental journey" of 60 years duration reached a high point for George and Mary Elizabeth Prigmore of Carmel Hacienda on Monday when they celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary with family and friends at the New York City apartment of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Vanderwarker.

What does it take for a marriage to last happily for 60 years? "Cooperation, much love and endearment," say the Prigmores, who began their married life in Washington and later came to Sebastopol, California. Last May, after 20 years there, they began to find their orchards too much for them to maintain and moved to Carmel. Mr. Prigmore, a former vice president of Q-Tips, Inc., owned a chain of drug stores before his retirement.

The couple also have two grandchildren, Christine (Mrs. Alexander Hazard Williams III) and Richard V. Vanderwarker Jr., and a great grandson, Alexander Hazard Williams IV, commonly known as "Tad."

Art News . . .

Richard Lofton will leave Carmel in time for the opening of his one-man show in Charleston, North Carolina, the first week in November. He plans to remain in his native state, where he also has been invited to have one-man shows in the capital, Columbia, and Florence, for a month or six weeks, depending on the commissions he will execute during his visit to the Southern state.

A one-man show of more than 30 contemporary paintings and metal sculptures by Traylor Dunwoody is now on display in San Jose at the Peninsula Showroom Gallery at 175-195 Stockton Avenue for two weeks.

The 28-year-old artist is a member of the Carmel Art Association, Los Angeles Art Association and the American Federation of Arts.

He was born in Houston, Texas, and has studied at the Art Center School in Los Angeles and the Kunstnijverheid School in Amsterdam. His work has been exhibited in Europe, also in the United States at San Francisco's Maxwell Gallery, the Carmel Art Association, the Los Angeles Art Association, the Meredith Long Gallery in Houston and the Marin Museum Association Sculpture Exhibit.

Five hundred invitations have been issued for a gala champagne preview tomorrow at a new art gallery in Sacramento featuring, exclusively, the work of Monterey Peninsula artists.

A building on Freeport Boulevard in the state capital has been remodeled for the gallery. Center strip spot lighting has been installed to accent pictures while providing a "candlelight glow" in the rest of the exhibition area. The undertaking is a project of Treaster and Green, a long-established firm of interior decorators and purveyors of fine furniture. Bob Treaster, son of one of the partners, collected the show of Carmel artists' work for the opening and will be in charge of continuing, rotating shows.

Contributing artists who have been asked to attend the gallery opening are John Cunningham, Patricia Cunningham, Edith Dinkin, Gene Elmore, Joe Feuerborn, Richard Lim, Ann Rugh and Harlinde von Ruhs.

NEW STREET LIGHTS

Carmel City Council.
Gentlemen:

The Klenke Committee asks that you reconsider your action taken in the meeting of October 6, 1965, in which you voted to accept the street lighting recommended by the committee covering this project. We feel that such a radical departure from the traditional decor of Carmel is something that should not be decided without the public to have a chance to present their opposing views to the proposed lighting.

We came to the meeting prepared to discuss the Sunset School Properties and were not aware that the council was going to pass on the lighting in that session.

We are deeply concerned and ask that you do not enter into any contract with Pacific Gas & Electric until this is aired openly.

Sincerely,
Klenke Committee
Carvel Baldwin, Chairman.

Ed. Note; Mr. Baldwin gave a copy of the letter to the Pine Cone to alert citizens to a situation which he deplores.

TRUCKS IN RESIDENCE ZONE

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone.

I am writing on behalf of a client who is a long time resident and taxpayer of Carmel and is concerned with the preservation of the charm and beauty of Carmel's residential areas. In particular, my client feels it appropriate, while the city is considering a new ordinance regulating parking, to raise the question of the use of residential areas for commercial parking.

More and more frequently, commercial trucks are being stored at night and on weekends and holidays on the city's residential streets. This is in some cases a violation of existing law, but present ordinances are not an effective means of control. Often the storage is by Carmel residents who bring commercial trucks home at night from other communities. In effect, their employers are having the City of Carmel provide storage space for their trucks.

In framing the new parking ordinance, we urge the city to enact effective controls over the storage of commercial trucks on residential streets overnight and on weekends and holidays. A prohibition against the parking of such trucks for more than two hours in residential areas, except during normal working hours or except when the driver is actually engaged in his occupation at the residence, would help preserve the beauty and charm that makes Carmel such a desirable place to live.

Yours sincerely,
Kenneth A. Ehrman.

Ed. Note; This letter is a copy of one which Mr. Ehrman addressed to the city council and planning commission. He sent the letter to the Pine Cone as a matter of public interest.

AGAINST REFINERY

Editor
Carmel Pine Cone.

Newspapers have carried word of the three to two approval of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors relative to the establishment of an Humble Oil Refinery at Moss Landing. In effect this vote spells the doom of the famous Monterey Bay weather and its odor-free atmosphere. Such an oil refinery will contaminate the atmosphere, you may be assured, for at least 20 miles around in all directions relative to the wind currents. This will be disastrous to Watsonville, Castroville, Salinas and the entire Monterey Bay and might even effect Santa Cruz.

The atmosphere and the beauty of the Monterey Bay area is its greatest attribute. It is also one of the few places in the Western United States considered a highly healthful residential region.

How you can even consider creating another Los Angeles smog area, or another Martinez, California stink, or a Richmond, California combination of both? Are oil dollars for taxes worth more than pure air and unmatched scenery?

Would you like to have me conduct you on a tour of the areas so polluted that the sky is gray and brown every day? Would you like to see color slides of what you are voting for in lost beauty?

My home in Pacific Grove was to be my retirement retreat as perhaps it is yours. What is the value of beauty and clear, plain air? This is the question you must ask of yourselves. Can man have anything beautiful left, or must all give way to commercial greed?

Yours,
Ferdinand S. Ruth

Ed Note; The writer of the above letter is a former zoology instructor at Monterey Peninsula College. The letter is a copy of one sent to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

FOR REFINERY

Ed. Note: The following letter is the result of a telephone canvass conducted by directors of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce. A copy was sent to the Pine Cone to make this paper's readers aware of the attitude expressed below.

Mr. J. E. Gardner
Manager, Fuel Products & Planning
Humble Oil & Refining Company
P. O. Box 1507
Houston, Texas.

Dear Mr. Gardner:

Recently, articles have appeared in local newspapers indicating that the Humble Oil Company is considering a site in Contra Costa County as an alternate location for your California refinery should Humble encounter "delays due to litigation threatened by an aroused citizenry."

The Seaside Chamber of Commerce wants to advise you, and the officers of the Humble Oil Company, that we view this threat to the future economy of our area with considerable alarm. We are more than casually concerned lest Humble decide to abandon the selected site at Moss Landing in favor of a location elsewhere.

Speaking for a majority of the directors of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce, I hasten to assure you that our position regarding Humble's refinery at Moss Landing is unchanged. We want Humble in Monterey County. We remain ready, and willing to assist your company in every way within our power to implement your plans to locate here.

We of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce, representing well over 100 business organizations in this community of over 23,000 people, remain convinced that having Humble Oil Company's plant in this area will result in the accrual of great benefits to Monterey County. We are confident that Humble's agreement to the restrictions imposed on the operation will protect the integrity of the air and water of the area to the point that the refinery will pose no threat to the agricultural and residential community.

In summation, the Seaside Chamber of Commerce has in no manner altered its original position favoring the establishment of a refinery at Moss Landing, and stands ready to assist the Humble Oil Company in every way possible within our sphere of influence.

Sincerely,
Mike Heitzinger,
President.

CHS Open House

A film designed to guide prospective parents was presented as the feature of Monday's open house at the new office of the Children's Home Society at 444 Pearl Street in Monterey. The "Story of Adoption" portrays the agency's services for the infant who needs a permanent home, to the natural parents requiring help in planning for the future of their children, and to the couples seeking to build families of their own by adoption.

Mrs. Helen Robinson, case-work supervisor, welcomed board members, staff and their families at the new quarters housing the staff of workers who arrange for adoptions and for the care of infants pending adoptions. Honored guests were Mrs. Arthur Hickey of Carmel, who recently retired as statewide volunteer director of all auxiliary chapters, and Lieutenant Colonel Oliver E. Porter, representative from the Ford Ord chaplain's office.

Guests at the open house also viewed paintings by local artists Margaret Ziegler and Judith Cohen which have been loaned for exhibit.

The Children's Home Society is partially maintained by bequests, memberships of individuals, families and clubs, and donations and work of auxiliaries.

'The Innocents' Is A Success–Technically–But There Is Also Horror On The White Oaks Stage

In technical excellence, the White Oaks Theatre has come a long way since the days in the drafty old barn behind the Carmel Valley Post Office. Its beautiful building lends an air of elegance to the very act of theater-going, and the increasing professionalism of its actors, directors and designers is an increasing pleasure.

Thus technically viewed, "The Innocents" by William Archibald, the opening play of the White Oaks winter season, is a success. Special music by Philip Yost creates and maintains the desired eerie atmosphere, expertly enhanced by Joan Larkey's lighting. The set, also by Miss Larkey, and costuming by Gale Peterson, are so effective as to be unobtrusive and contribute not one distraction or jarring note.

"The Innocents" is, however, a production to be admired rather than an entertainment to be enjoyed. Henry James' "Turn of the Screw," from which the stage vehicle was adapted, never was a very pleasant story, but the spell-binding style made it gripping. Too much that was pure horror in James has been made flesh on the stage, and it is impossible to feel much involved in the fates of a crippled housekeeper, a hysterical governess and a couple of fairly nasty brats. The story moves so fast that there is no chance to establish rapport with these characters as people before the supernatural begins to intrude.

More than the style of the story has been tampered with. Peter Quint, the dead manservant who exercises a mysterious influence over the 12-year-old Miles, carries a strong suggestion, as drawn by James, of unnatural evil, of a power to corrupt that lies beyond anything open to the ordinary man. In the play this has been pretty well boiled down to the use of sex, which is certainly shocking enough to account for the boy's being bounced out of prep school for trying to initiate his schoolmates. It hardly seems enough, however, even for the 1880's, to bring Quint back from the grave, drive the governess out of her mind, and snatch the life from Miles' body.

It is doubtful whether any change in the manner of acting or directing would make the play more compelling. Mary Pattie, as Miss Giddens the governess, is lovely and distraught, and Tracy Carr comes through as a thoroughly competent character actress in the role of the housekeeper. The secret has to lie in the children, Barbara Gene Makinster and George Gray, who are required by the script to be completely adorable and sympathetic when they are not being horrid. There is little to criticize and much to praise in their performances, but an initial impact of utter charm is called for and most of us go to our graves without ever managing this. The children are asked to produce too much.

Ansel Adams Flays Humble Oil Company At AIA Convention

"Any man in his right mind must realize the perils of overpopulation, of the pollution of life-giving water and air, of the extravagant over-use of natural resources, and the increasing insults to the spiritual and esthetic environments.

"Yet, one of the largest corporations in the world, the principals of which are known for great benefactions and leadership in the pageants of conservation, permits a subsidiary company to proceed with a large oil refinery in Monterey County—heretofore a prime agricultural and recreational area of California."

The words above were spoken by Ansel Adams of Carmel Highlands, nationally honored photographer and conservationist, in a speech entitled "The Architect and the Natural Environment" which he gave last week at the 20th annual convention of the California Council of the American Institute of Architects in Yosemite.

Mr. Adams' address was the keynote speech of the five-day convention held at Yosemite Lodge.

BENEFIT FOR CONVALESCENTS

The staff and volunteers of the Carmel Convalescent Hospital will hold a rummage sale on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the former nurses' quarters on the hospital grounds at Valley Way and Highway One.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward the Christmas Fund for the benefit of patients without families or friends to remember them during the holiday season.

Indian Diplomat To Talk About Kashmir

Tomorrow evening, Mohammed Yunus, consul general of India in San Francisco, will discuss "Kashmir" at a meeting of the Monterey Peninsula World Affairs Council in Brey Hall at Carmel High School.

Soon after the achievement of Indian independence, in which he took an active part, Mr. Yunus served as the first Indian representative to the Republic of Indonesia. In 1949 he was appointed charge d'affaires for the Indian embassy in Ankara and later to the same position in Baghdad.

During the Bandung Conference in 1955, he was advisor to the joint secretariat to organize the first Afro-Asian Conference. On his return to Delhi, he was posted deputy secretary in his country's foreign office and afterwards served in Madrid. Before coming to California, Mr. Yunus was head of the political division in the Indian foreign office supervising Southeast Asia concerns.

Dr. Ashley Montagu To Speak At MPC

With the theme "Roots of Prejudice," Monterey Peninsula College will open its Fall, 1965, evening lecture series with a talk by Dr. Ashley Montagu, British-born anthropologist, social biologist and author of such provocative books as "Man's Most Dangerous Myth: The Fallacy of Race" and "The Natural Superiority of Women."

Dr. Montagu will lecture on October 22, 8 p.m., in the Seaside High School auditorium. Free tickets, limited to two per person, are available at the MPC administration building switchboard.

American by choice since 1940, Dr. Montagu was educated at the University of London and earned his doctorate in anthropology at Columbia University in 1937. He has been chairman of the department of anthropology at Rutgers University, professor of anatomy at New York University, visiting professor at the University of Delaware, Bode Lecturer at Ohio State University, visiting lecturer on sociology at Harvard, and Regents Professor at the University of California.

A consultant on anthropological problems to UNESCO, Dr. Montagu has also worked extensively in the field of race problems.

In California, after golf beer's the one... for good taste, good fun

After a hard-played 18 holes, it's good to settle down on a soft chair in the club house and add up the score with friends. What better time for the drink that scores with almost every golfer—cool, thirst-quenching beer? Yes, beer's great to relax with, great for refreshment, great for taste. So whatever your sport—boating or baseball—swimming or tennis—relax afterwards with the zestful taste of beer.

Cypress Swim Club Benefit Will Be Biggest Water Show In State

"The Greatest Show On Water" is what the Cypress Swim Club is calling its first annual "Aqua-Spectacular, An Exhibition of Champions, Past, Present and Future," at the Monterey Peninsula College Pool this Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The fund-raising performance will feature National AAU synchronized swimming and diving champions, recently seen on ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports," as they competed for national titles at Maumee, Ohio. All proceeds from the show will go toward operating expenses of the non-profit Cypress Swim Club.

An impressive cast has been assembled for the biggest water show ever seen in California, including Junior National AAU outdoor duet champions, Carol Redmond and Margo McGrath of the San Francisco Merionettes: indoor duet champions, Pam Albin and Barbara Shervanick of the Riverside Aquettes; Junior National team champions, "The Keystone Corps", Marsha and Marilyn Lane of Carmel Valley; and Kim Welshons of Danville, California, Junior National solo champion, who will perform her inspiring version of "Juliet," with which she took the national title last July.

Cypress Swim Club will swim two team routines which have won awards in the Pacific Association of AAU, "Cotillion Waltz," and "Toy Soldiers On Parade."

Donn Squire, coach of the Cypress Club and Senior National AAU Men's solo champion, will swim the solo, "Gypsy Dance," created for the 1963 Pan American Games, and presented in Tokyo last Fall in connection with the Olympic Games. He will also swim a duet, "The Sultan's Favorites," with Carol Whitney of Salinas, a 1958 National duet runner-up.

Admission to the show is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 years old. Because a sell-out is expected at both performances, the public is advised to make reservations with any member of the Cypress Swim Club, or by calling Mrs. Clayton Neill (659-4233) or Mrs. Bruce McClain (372 2712).

Cooperative Condor Count This Weekend

An experimental effort to count California's small remaining condor population will be undertaken on Saturday and Sunday by a cooperative effort of the California Department of Fish and Game, the U.S. Forest Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Audubon Society and a number of ranchers and other interested individuals.

More than 70 experienced condor observers at 60 observation points in the Sespe Wildlife Area in Ventura County will be involved in the count. No counters will be stationed in the condor sanctuary in the wildlife area but in the birds' flight path in the 50-square-mile area surrounding the sanctuary. Other counters will be placed in the big birds' flyways along the Sierra and Coast Range foothills.

The California condor has the largest wingspread of any North American bird, more than nine feet. A recent study of this carrion-eating species, sponsored by the National Audubon Society, estimates the total number at 40 birds, which represents a decline in the past 20 years. The condors are totally protected by law.

Trustees Dream While Snails Race At Middle School

They are racing snails at Middle School and the odds are high. In fact, so astronomic that the board of education members, last night, sadly regretted that they couldn't even take a tip—small snails race faster. All they could say was "Too bad fellows!" to the proposition presented to them by three science teachers.

"Our Dream" was the name given to the proposal which originated with Marvin Patterson, Al Kolb and Herbert Reuter of the Middle School faculty. They showed the board graphs made by fifth graders which demonstrated a snail's rate of speed according to weight, all measured by the centigrade system. These were impressive and proved that snail-racing immeasurably added to pupils' scientific knowledge . . . actually manipulative science learning is the proper term.

The three teachers also displayed science apparatus for other aspects of the learning-by-doing science program they conduct. Each piece of equipment takes time to construct, and each pupil must have the equipment for the teaching to be effective. Last year, ninth grade lab assistants helped in the creation of these teaching aids. Now teachers' time — time — time is required.

Other equipment such as built-in desk projectors, scales, a platform and pyrex glassware is needed to effectively carry on the Middle School science program.

Lastly, if manipulative science teaching at Middle School is to be superior, a science teaching complex including two laboratories, a vivarium, project area, library, preparation and staff work areas, offices and a large group teaching facility is desirable.

All this added up to the odds which the trustees found astronomic. They dreamed along with the science teachers but found no way of providing funds for lab assistants, equipment and a science facility although they appeared convinced that manipulative experience was better than memorizing factual information.

"The board should recognize that these teachers are doing a good job but not what they could do if they had time, equipment and space," Superintendent Medill Bair commented. He added that until the Carmel school system has the "dream" proposed last night, it will not provide superior instruction.

The snails will go on racing at Middle School and, last night, it was evident that the board of education's progress will be even slower. The odds are too high. But the board will dream, too, in astronomic figures.

Major Fletcher

Major John Thomas Fletcher Jr. (USAF ret.) of Carmel died Monday in Palo Alto Veterans Hospital after an extended illness.

During the greater part of his career with the Air Force, from which he retired in October, 1962, Major Fletcher was a pilot and maintainance officer in the Strategic Air Command. A veteran of World War II and the Korean War, he was born in Warner, Oklahoma, June 15, 1925.

He leaves his wife, Dorothy; a daughter, Melissa; and two sons, John and Kim, all of Carmel; his mother, Mrs. Fred Burnett of Pryor, Oklahoma; a brother, Lieutenant Commander James Fletcher of Norfolk, Virginia; a sister, Mrs. James Seals of Alvin, Texas; and a grandmother, Mrs. George Swaffar of Edmond, Oklahoma.

Memorial services for Major Fletcher will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of the Wayfarer. Burial will take place in Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia.

Honorary pallbearers will include Lieutenant Edward Stroupe, Colonel Ray Bauman, Major William Richmond, William Ober, Eugene Balster and James Stroupe.

Friends withing to honor the memory of Major Fletcher may do so in the form of donations to the cobalt cancer fund of the Community Hospital, Box HH, Carmel.

Gift Shop For Men To Open Tomorrow

The Black Freighter, a shop featuring gifts exclusively for men, opens its doors tomorrow at Crichton House Square on Mission and Seventh Streets. The imaginative name, conjuring up visions of faraway ports of call, will be matched by a selection of distinctive gifts for men from countries all over the world. The store will also feature its own colognes for men under the Black Freighter label.

Owners-operators of the new establishment are Mike Keller, director of The Studio Theater, and Roy Baxter, former manager of Carmel Valley Inn. Over a year and a half ago, the partners came to Carmel with the intention of opening just such a business venture but put their plans aside when conditions seemed unpropitious. Their dream, however, refused to die and tomorrow they will begin to test their belief that Carmel is the place for a shop featuring gifts only for men.

Carmel Writer To Autograph Book At Rancho On Saturday

The author of "Who Gets The Drumstick?", Helen Beardsley, mother of Carmel's largest family consisting of 20 children, will autograph copies of her book on Saturday from 3-6 p.m. at the Carmel Rancho branch of The Wells bookshop at the invitation of the owner, Henry Meade Williams.

Carmelites were interested to see Mrs. Beardsley on a national television program this week. This presonal appearance was one of several arranged by Random House, publishers of her book, while she was in New York City last week.

"Who Gets The Drumstick?" is an account of the meeting of two widowed persons, Helen North, the mother of eight children, and Frank Beardsley, father of ten sons and daughters; their courtship; marriage; and the love which holds the family, increased by another son and daughter, together.

Symphony Season Opens Tuesday

With Sunset auditorium filled with season subscribers, the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra's 20th anniversary season will open with a sold-out concert on Tuesday evening.

Prefacing the opening number of the program, Rossini's colorful overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Conductor John Gosling will introduce the guest concertmistress, Miss Ernestine Riedel, member of the first violin section of the San Francisco Symphony and a distinguished international concert artist.

James M. R. Glaser, president of the symphony association, will welcome the audience and members of the orchestra, many of whom have participated in symphony programs through two decades.

Raymond Fabrizio, flutist of wide reputation and local popularity, will, as soloist of the evening, be heard with the orchestra in "Night Soliloquy" by Kennan.

During intermission members of the audience will view the exhibit in the lobby of camera studies by the distinguished photographer and conservationist, Ansel Adams.

A west coast premiere, Creston's "Corinthians XIII. Op. 82" and the Brahms "Symphony No. 1, in C Minor, Op. 68," will conclude the program.

Ushers, under the direction of a symphony association board member, Walter Burde, will be students of Robert Louis Stevenson School for Boys.

A reception, honoring the musicians, given by the Monterey Peninsula Symphony Guild, will be held at the Carmel Art Association Gallery following the concert.

Due to the deluge of requests for tickets for Tuesday night's concert, season subscribers not planning to attend are urged to notify the symphony office (624-4125). A telephone call is all that is necessary. Calls can be taken at any time up to 8:15 p.m. Tuesday evening.

Film On Spain Tomorrow Night

"Spain," a travel film which won a motion picture award for Dwight Long will be presented tomorrow evening at 8:15 p.m. in Sunset Auditorium by the Explorers Club of San Francisco.

This is the second film in the club's Explorerama series to be shown in Carmel. Mr. Long will be the narrator for the picture which he filmed in Spain.

Tickets are $1.50 and will be available at the auditorium box office tomorrow night.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED BECAUSE SO MANY HOUSES ARE!
THE FOLLOWING ARE AS BRIGHT AND CHEERY AS THE FINEST INDIAN SUMMER DAY
(And not an expensive one on the list)

CARMEL:

1. For less than $25,000 a miniature "salt-box" remodeled especially for the artistic soul. (One only, not big enough for more). An extra studio, too, in which to finish that mystery story or novel.
2. Remember when people went "upstairs to bed"? A nice custom, wasn't it? This cleverly remodeled number boasts a winding stairway to one big bedroom and one little one. Not many of these in Carmel for less than $30,000.
3. And, not many like this one for less than $35,000, so here is a REAL FIND that is as fresh as the crisp new dotted swiss curtains in the kitchen. Three bedrooms (one with outside entrance), two baths, 22 ft. living room, closets galore and the sunniest kitchen overlooking pretty patio. Rustic setting but only three blocks to I. Magnins!

MONTEREY:

Sparkling new, midway between Monterey and Salinas on knoll with view of the wide-wide world. Three bedrooms, all carpeted. On a full acre with many nice oaks. Priced below $30,000 to allow margin for new owner to landscape.

PACIFIC GROVE:

Another never-lived-in house offered at sacrifice price by owners who have left area. For less than $40,000 a masterpiece of craftsmanship on half-acre with glorious redwoods, pines and oaks. Near Asilomar Beach. (This, too, has a studio for the artist, writer or guest).

To A House On Thirteenth Street

He contributed verses to this ditty.

One of them goes as follows:

Some stick to biz, some flirt with Liz,
Down on the sands of Coney
But we, by hell, stay in Carmel,
And nail the abalone."

Mrs. Cooke found a cottage for the young writer near her house. The rent was $15 a month. Here a young poet, William Rose Benet, joined him. They did their own cooking, cleaning and laundry, tramped the shore and hills, swam, talked and wrote.

One story which Lewis wrote at this time was published, "The Smile Lady," which appeared in Nautilus magazine and for which he was paid $15. This led to an arrangement for the writing, in Carmel, of a longer story for the same magazine.

But Sinclair Lewis was taking copious notes for future reference. These encompassed Carmel sunsets and the life of the group with which he associated. He found time, too, to take part in amateur theatricals and, stuffed with a pillow, masqueraded as a Dutch woman for a "market" held on Ocean Avenue as a community benefit. However, at the end of six months, he left.

When he returned ten years later, he was known as one of this country's coming young writers. During a two-month stay, he wrote stories which were published in the Saturday Evening Post, Metropolitan, Hearst's and Century magazines. One of them expressed his disappointment with the Carmel he found on his return, but residents of the city at that time attributed his reactions to theirs . . . dislike for one another . . . not Carmel itself.

Seven years later, Sinclair Lewis, now a nationally acclaimed novelist, came back again. This time he stayed at Del Monte Lodge, operated by his former classmate at Yale, S.F.B. Morse of Del Monte Properties Company.

He was still disappointed with Carmel. In a letter to his father, he said "once wild, rocky shores, so free and uninhabited then (1909), are covered with expensive houses. All in 15 years." He found that instead of corduroy trousers and flannel shirts Carmelites wore "smart English tweeds" and "rode in fairly expensive cars" instead of walking. But he did find congenial company in Monterey, Gouveneur Morris and his guests, Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino.

Three years later, in 1930, Sinclair Lewis arrived again, to live in Monterey, near Morris, for several months. He came to Carmel frequently to visit Lincoln Steffens and Ella Winter. He did no particular writing at this time although he did mention work on a "labor" book and went to interview the political prisoners, Mooney, McNamara and Schmidt, in San Quentin.

Another three years were to pass before Sinclair Lewis revisited Carmel for the fourth time and again stayed at Del Monte Lodge. He was the foremost novelist in the United States at this time and, two years before, had been awarded the first Nobel Prize for literature presented to an American writer.

On this occasion, he recalled for the Pine Cone's reporter, Herb Cerwin, his writing between secretarial duties at the Cooke house on Thirteenth Street.

"True enough, I wrote fiction, but I was more interested in poetry. If it wasn't for the fact that I had to eat, I'd still be a poet."

Of Carmel in 1933, Sinclair Lewis said, "Somehow, strangely enough, Carmel has survived and retained much of the atmosphere that made it famous in the days when I first lived there.

"For God's sake, don't let the Babbitts run the town. You've got every other city in the country beat."

Three years before, he told another Pine Cone reporter, "There isn't another town in the world that I know of like Carmel. There's none in America and none that I know of in Europe."

So it would seem, that the day in 1909 when Sinclair Lewis trudged over the hill and climbed the steps of the Cooke house really opened up to the man—who won a Nobel Prize by scorning the tawdriness of the United States of his era in caustic novels—a vista of admirable life in this country . . . only to be found in Carmel.

Mrs. Cooke, Sinclair Lewis' benefactor in 1909, continued to make her home here for another two decades. Her daughter, Helen, married Harry Leon Wilson, famed American author. Their daughter, Charis, spent her childhood in the home her parents built in Carmel Highlands and later returned to live nearby as the wife of Edward Weston, the renowned photographer.

Jackhammers Soon To Shatter Calm At Carmel Library

The noise of jackhammers will soon invade the quiet of the Harrison Memorial Library as the result of a decision by the board of trustees of the municipal facility. Library hours may have to be accommodated to the time when the confusion is least, they also agreed.

Yesterday afternoon, the library board awarded to the low bidder, Jack Miller, a Carmel builder, the contract for alterations which will provide both men's and women's rest rooms and an enlarged librarian's office at a cost of $10,292.50. The work will start within two weeks and is expected to take from five weeks to two months.

Should it be necessary during this time, the library will open in the afternoon only, for six hours.

During the alterations, the librarian's office and the processing accommodations will be moved to Sunset Center.

minded. It is anxious for ideas to be presented. In the meantime, it is realistically seeking to discover means of reducing the 20 cents per $100 of the tax rate it is costing to operate Sunset Center this year, as is, with a few minor investments in equipment to make the auditorium more usable.

The Sunset Commission is the intelligent guiding agency through which citizens and cultural organizations may arrive at a satisfying plan for a new, or remodeled, cultural and community center.

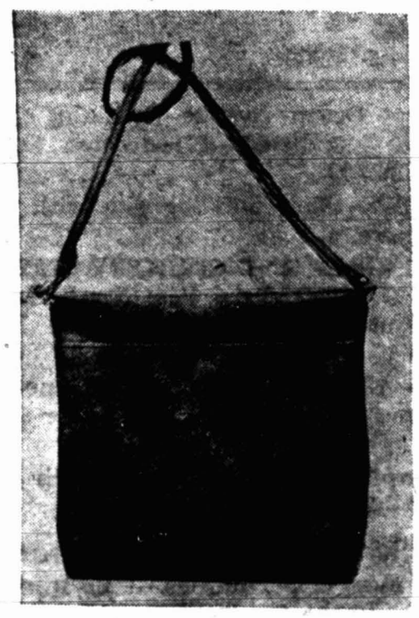

This plan will then be presented to the city council which, last week, pledged itself to being dominantly motivated to achieve harmony, realistically, in regards to Sunset development.

The council, as the governmental head of the city, will make the final decision keeping in mind finances available. If all this is accomplished, no cultural organization will have to "make do" with outdated, inadequate premises; none will seek ways and means to "get away." Harmony will reign.

KEEP IT GREEN WITH WATER...

The best care for your lawn is regular and proper watering. An underground lawn sprinkling system is the most efficient method, and can save you money on your water bill too. A variety of sprinkler heads are available and you can even install disappearing heads that pop up out of the lawn when the water is turned on. You can have a metal, rubber or plastic hose system installed in a short time, and without tearing up your lawn.
